

Top 10 Reasons to Study in Spain

By Aref Nassery

1. You didn't make it on American Idol.

Spruce up your vocals by watching a performance by the legendary La Tuna university groups!

2. You live too far away from the ocean.

Taste the world's best and most authentic seafood dish—Spain's own paella.

3. You were the slowest kid in gym class.

Prove all of your former classmates wrong by releasing your inner matador! Run with the bulls in Pamplona and break out that red cape you didn't get to wear last Halloween!

4. You can't seem to spell "committee" right.

Forget about double consonants! Spanish hardly has any!

5. You can't understand what Enrique Inglesias is singing.

Well, duh! The best songs are in Spanish—learn Spanish and move to the ritmo español.

6. You are a horrible dancer.

Don't worry--the flamenco's got you covered! It's energetic and fun, and easy to learn, too!

7. You thought Goya was a brand of garbanzo beans.

Although you can find Goya in the international aisle at your local supermarket, the only place you can find Goya's best original works is at the Museo del Prado in gorgeous Madrid.

8. You feel like you were a monarch in a past life.

Relive your dreams at the Alhambra—bask in the sun and revel in the beauty of the beautiful 14th century Moorish castle.

9. You are the world's worst (or best) artist.

If you need a creative boost, or simply want to enjoy pure beauty, be sure to visit what is quite possibly one of the world's most notable buildings, the Guggenheim Museum in Bilbao.
